Recycling Group Looks At "Pay-As-You-Throw"

by Diane Oberg

During the fall city council campaign, several candidates endorsed the recommendation of the Recycling Advisory Committee to consider moving to a "pay-as-you-throw" basis for charging for refuse collection. On January 29, Esther Bowring, Montgomery County's recycling coordinator, gave a presentation to Greenbelt citizens on the Chevy Chase pilot program of volume based charging.

The program creates incentives for citizens to recycle more and to reduce the amount of trash they generate, by varying refuse fees based upon the amount of trash collected. Bowring described the two main types of volume based refuse collection used across the country. One is to have residents purchase special bags (or stickers for their trash bags). Only trash in these special (or stickered) bags will be collected.

The second type of program is to have customers use special containers with refuse fees dependent upon the number and size of containers used. Bowring noted that these volume-based programs were inefficient forms of "pay-as-you-throw" since landfill charges are based upon the weight of trash. However, the equipment needed to weigh and record trash by household is relatively expensive.

Chevy Chase chose the container based method. Refuse collection in that town is largely funded through general tax revenues, not customer fees. The only fee the city could vary based upon volume of trash is a $75 annual "dump fee" introduced a few years ago to help offset rising landfill costs. Residents could choose among three container options—a single 20 gallon can for $25/year, a single 32 gallon can for $45/year or two 32 gallon cans for $75/year. Town residents were given 10 "excess trash" stickers that they could use when their trash volume exceeded their can capacity. Overstuffed cans, with lids stacked several inches from the top of the can, will not be emptied. Additional tags can be purchased from the town office.

To encourage participation from Chevy Chase and its citizens, Montgomery County offered curbside collection for mixed paper. This reduces the amount of trash that residents must pay to be removed.

So far, the program seems to be encouraging recycling. Montgomery County is conducting extensive sampling and analysis of the types and amounts of trash set out. The program was instituted last September. By October the amount of recyclables that were put out was up roughly 20 percent from last June and refuse down by 16 percent, although the total amount of trash (recyclables and refuse) remained constant. The percent of households participating has increased from 80 percent before implementation to 99 percent in October. The percentage of refuse being recycled rose to 63 percent, which is up from 45 percent in June. Bowring credited most of this increase to the new curbside mixed paper collection.

The first step that made the program work probably helped increase the amount of mixed paper collected. Montgomery County conducted a massive educational campaign to tell citizens what to expect and how to participate. At one point, Bowring said, they were mailing flyers weekly.

It is not easy to set up such a program, according to Bowring. In addition to the educational campaign, the county received many special requests that they tried to accommodate to encourage participation. These included making stickers that residents who did not want the new containers could put on their existing

by Mary Moien

Did you know that children living in Greenbelt attend more than 70 schools in the Washington, D.C. area? That staggering fact was established by the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE). This committee was chartered by the Greenbelt City Council in the fall of 1994 and established last April; Leta Mach is currently the chair. The committee's mission is to ensure that the schools that Greenbelt children attend are the best that they can be. On February 26, the committee will present its first ACE Educator awards for school-based adults at an open city council meeting and reception.

The ACE Educator awards recognize adults who have contributed to Greenbelt students' positive experiences in school. Because of the large number of schools involved, the committee has concentrated its efforts on those schools which a majority of Greenbelt students attend. These include all of the Greenbelt area schools — Eleanor Roosevelt High School, Greenbelt Middle School, Greenbelt Elementary School, Springhill Lake Elementary, and St. Hugh's School, as well as Magnolia Elementary, Oakcrest Elementary, and Robert Goddard Middle schools. While the committee is concentrating on these schools, members are interested in hearing from, and working with, parents whose children attend both these and other area schools.

Last June the advisory committee gave its first ACE awards. These were presented to a special student in each school who had shown a dedication both to the school and the community. Students received their certificates at a Greenbelt City Council meeting and reception. This month, one adult in each school will receive a similar award. The person may be a teacher, administrator, clerical or cafeteria worker, or any of the adult staff that assist each day with the children. Residents are invited to the February 26 city council meeting to recognize these outstanding people. A reception is planned at 7:30 p.m.

The Advisory Committee on Education currently has seven members, and the city council is searching for a few more dedicated individuals. Meetings are held once a month, usually the fourth Tuesday of the month at 7 p.m. They are open to the public.

Additional activities have also been organized. At the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival, for example, the committee sponsored an information booth to introduce themselves to the community and get feedback on parents' and citizens' concerns about the school system. Although the educational program, school staff, and physical resources of the area schools got high marks, concern was expressed about increasing class size. The information received will help to shape future committee activities. One planned activity will be a citizens' forum.

Fire Station Rehabilitation Estimate Is $250,000

by James Giese

The Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Inc. (GVFD&RS) and the Greenbelt City Council are in search of $250,000 to refurbish the Greenbelt fire station. The building, owned by the city and leased to the volunteer company for a nominal fee, was built in 1961 at a cost of $115,000. A city bond issue was floated at that time to pay for construction; two later bond issues funded additions. In 1969, a banquet room facility was added at a cost of $51,000 and in 1978, a second addition to provide office and bunkroom space was completed for $75,000. The fire company has reimbursed the city for some of these costs through its fund raising efforts.

Although the building is owned by the city, Prince George's County is responsible for maintenance as part of its support of volunteer fire companies. The GVFD&RS has complained that maintenance has not been adequate and that the building is deteriorating. Roof leaks are a long-standing problem, despite several efforts at repair.

Jay A. Remenick, president of GVFD&RS, has told county fire chief Lemuel Roberts of five priority needs for the facility. They are: to correct a severe erosion problem behind the storage shed and fuel tank, to repair loose mortar on the building's exterior, to complete the renovation of the control room with upgraded air conditioning and heating, to complete renovation of the bunk room, and to paint the apparatus room, upgrade the room's lighting and install new ceiling tile.

After surveying the building's condition, William C. Stratton, project manager for the Ralph M. Parsons Company, prepared a conceptual cost estimate of $250,000 for the general repair and renovation of the building. The report contains a three page list of needed repairs, which includes correcting code violations identified by the city's code enforcement program. Major items were nearly $65,000 for parking lot improvements; $13,000 for pathway improvements, including lighting to connect the fire station lot with St. Hugh's for overflow parking; $16,000 to replace the diesel fuel tank; $25,000 for improvements to the apparatus room; $15,000 for bunk room improvements; $15,000 for a new console in the control room and $4,000 for the lounge area.

The City has enlisted the aid of State Senator Leo Green in the search for funds, but so far a pot of gold has not been found. One possibility was the use of community development block grant funds. However, the incorporated city of Greenbelt as a whole, the territory principally served by the department, falls short of qualifying by a mere .17%, according to a memo prepared by former Senior Administrative Assistant Eric Berlin. State funds to the county, which must be divided among all the fire companies, appear to be inadequate to do the job. Green has asked Congressman Steny Hoyer to explore the availability of federal funds.

In the meantime, county officials have been meeting with GVFD&RS officers to identify problems that can be dealt with in the near future with what little funds may be available.

"Unrestricted Visions" Photography Exhibit

by Dorothy Sucher

"Unrestricted Visions," a show of photographs and narratives now on view at the downstairs gallery of the Greenbelt Public Library, serves as a poignant reminder of our perennial impulse to transcend our limitations. Subtitled "Special Teens Document Life at the University of Maryland," the exhibit features the work of students in two Special Education classes at Parkdale High School. All the teens have mild to severe mental disabilities, and some are physically disabled as well.

The young photographers were participants in the Photo Outreach Program at the University of Maryland, directed by Greenbelter Barbara Tyroler. The program matched the teens with volunteers, most of them university students, who served as photography teachers and mentors. Together they roamed the sprawling campus while the teens, from their own unique perspective, captured the university setting on film.

"The experience made everyone feel good," said mentor

Garrett Curry, a junior at the university who is majoring in art and psychology and wants to pursue a career in art therapy. "The teens enjoyed it. They have the ability to look at things creatively. I made friends, and I learned that some really nice people have mental disabilities."

Some of Curry's portrait sketches of the teens appear in the show, as do photographs and autobiographical statements by both the teens and their mentors. A portrait emerges of a college campus as seen through the eyes of young people who will never

Consider the Downsides

For three years, the Greenbelt City Council has sought full planning and zoning authority from the Maryland legislature, authority now vested in the county. All six council candidates in last fall's election endorsed the effort, as have many citizens. Once again, the legislature appears to have rejected the city's request.

Because we believed it unlikely that the city would ever attain full planning and zoning authority, we have not commented on the issue before. However, it appears that the city council intends to keep on pressing for planning and zoning authority. We think that the community needs to give greater thought to whether this is a good idea. We think there are downsides to taking on zoning responsibility, even though we understand and share council's frustration over some of the county's past zoning decisions. The issues are more complicated than the debate to date would indicate, and we ask that further thought be given to some of the negatives.

Will having our own zoning authority really solve the problem? Some of the developments proposed in the past that have most tried council's patience have clearly been permitted by the relevant zoning laws. If the city were unsuccessful in negotiating a better plan with the developer, council would still have no option but to approve the development. Does the council want to be put in the position of having to make a legally correct but unpopular decision?

Increased legal liability. Developers can sue the jurisdiction with zoning responsibility if they believe approval of their plans was unreasonably withheld or if improper conditions were placed upon the development. Even if the city were found to have acted properly, the costs of such a suit could be significant.

The city, presumably, would have to pick up other legal costs from the county as well. When the owners of the Sunrise parcel filed suit claiming that sufficient work had been done to protect the site from rezoning, it was the county that bore the legal costs of disproving that claim. Such costs would be the city's if it were responsible for zoning.

Budget Impact. During the election, several candidates argued that increased fees would pay for any additional costs incurred by these new responsibilities. We are not so sure. The city is largely developed. How can the city maintain an adequate, highly trained staff during slow periods (when few fees are received) to handle a major development proposal?

Range of expertise. The county has an experienced staff with a variety of expertise that a small city such as Greenbelt could not hope to duplicate.

Effect on council elections. Throughout its history, Greenbelt has depended upon a part-time council of citizen-legislators. With the range of council's authority limited, elections have remained non-partisan, relatively low in cost and largely free of outside influence. Independent zoning authority could well change these conditions, as councilmembers' decisions would then have a direct influence on developers' profits.

Perhaps the concerns here can be mitigated. Perhaps, when all is considered, the advantages may be found to outweigh the disadvantages. We believe, however, that more consideration should be given to these concerns and that council should better justify its reasons for seeking planning and zoning authority before another effort is made to gain it.

Thanks

On Saturday night, January 27, I parked my car on Ridge Road opposite 6 court. I heard a tinkling noise as I got out of my car, but ignored it. Sunday morning when I went back out to my car I realized I didn't have my car key. That tinkling noise from the previous night was the sound of my car key hitting the street. I looked all over the street and under the car. Just as I was about to give up looking, I noticed the car key under the windshield wiper on my car. Thank you! Thank you! Thank you! Whoever you are! Community Events

Marathon Scheduled

by Larry Noel

After 35 years, the DC Road Runners' Washington's Birthday Marathon is coming to Greenbelt. It will be held on Sunday morning, February 18. In 1961, Hugh Jascourt of Greenbelt started this annual marathon, now one of the oldest in the country and one of the few in the Washington metropolitan area. It has had several homes, but since 1972 the course has been mainly on BARC's rural roads, where it will take place again this year.

The best place to view the runners will be at the Log Cabin between Powder Mill Road and Beaver Dam Road near the bottom of Research Road, as there is parking there. In addition, the 3-person marathon relay (8th annual) - each runner running about 8 and 1/2 miles - will have their exchange point there.

The start and finish will be just above the first block on Northway. For safety reasons, spectators should park in the lot behind the library.

Volunteers are asked to come to the Youth Center on February 18 by 9:30 a.m. Entry blanks for the marathon and relay are available at the Youth Center. Race day entries will be accepted for the marathon but not the relay. Call 703-271-8959 for information.

Public Programs At Planetarium

"Follow the Drinking Gourd," a planetarium show based on the children's book by Jeannette Winter, will be presented at the Owens Science Center on Friday, February 16 at 7:30 p.m. The show tells the story of a slave family escaping to the North, following the Drinking Gourd (Big Dipper) in the sky. The slaves learned about the drinking gourd from a song taught to them by an itinerant carpenter.

During the planetarium program, the audience learns the song, and the planetarium sky gives them first-hand experience identifying the Drinking Gourd and other constellations of the night sky. In addition to astronomy, the program relates to history, social studies, and music.

The Owens Science Center is located at 9601 Greenbelt Road, Lanham (next to Duval High School). Call 918-8750 for information. There is a charge.

Fun At Goddard

For a real "Blast" that the whole family can participate in, come to the Goddard Space Flight Center Visitor Center on Sunday, February 18. The model rocket launch countdown begins at 1 p.m. Bring a rocket or just come out and enjoy watching the other rocket enthusiasts. All launches are monitored for safety and are held weather permitting.

For more information on these or other activities, call 286-8981. Interpreters will be provided for the hearing impaired with seven days notice through TDD 286-8103.

Garden Club Holds Annual Meeting

The Greenbelt Garden Club will hold its annual meeting on Tuesday, March 5 at 7 p.m. in the new Greenbelt Community Center. Current and new members are strongly urged to attend this meeting. In addition to sign up for garden plots there will be a discussion of cleaning up the plots and fields, a clean-up day, and other matters the Greenbelt City Council requested the club take care of.

The club is open to all who want to garden. The club has three fields which are divided into plots. The fields are located in the central part of the city. The Community Center is the former Center School. It is on Crescent Road between the library and the municipal building. Enter on the side facing the shopping center and pool. For information call 345-3275.

The Friends of the Greenbelt Museum will hold their first Flea Market of the new year on Saturday, March 2, at the Greenbelt Community Center. Tax deductible donations of jewelry, bric-a-brac, toys, furniture and other household treasures may be dropped off at 2-G Gardenway until February 29. For pick-up, call Lee Shields, 474-5321.

Golden Age Club

by Bernie McGee

The Golden Age Club will meet at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, February 21, at the Youth Center. A video will be shown.

Members are reminded that sign-up sheets will be available for the Philadelphia Flower Show overnight coming up on Monday and Tuesday, February 26 and 27; The Passport Into History, Part Two on Thursday, March 28 and The Jewels of the South tour and cruise scheduled for April 12-19.

Anthony J. Pisano

Greenbelter, Anthony Joseph Pisano, of Greenhill Rd. died February 13 at Manor Care Nursing Home in Largo from complications related to cancer treatment.

A longtime Washington area resident, Mr. Pisano was born in Manhattan, N.Y. in 1922. He previously worked for Railway Express and in 1981 retired from George's Radio and TV Company as a TV technician. In 1978 he earned an AA degree from Prince George's Community College.

He was preceded in death by his wife of 40 years, Ann E. Pisano.

Survivors include three daughters, Diane Pisano of Bowie, Lynn Pisano Pedigo of Conifer, CO and Terry Pisano Goolsby of Upper Marlboro; two grandchildren, Jaime Oliff and Jason Everhart and one great-grandson, Charles Oliff. He is also survived by a sister, Rosalie Iadarola, a brother, Ernest Pisano, Jr. and numerous aunts, uncles, nieces and nephews plus a host of longtime friends and special friend, Martha Kaufman of Greenbelt.

Tony was well known in Greenbelt because of his many civic involvements. For many years he chaired the Greenbelt Duplicate Bridge Club. He served as treasurer of the Gray Panthers and was active in the Lakewood Civic Association and the Golden Age Club. He was a member of the initial Senior Citizens Task Force and later on the Senior Citizens Advisory Committee.

"You could always count on Tony," said Karen Haseley of the Recreation Dept. referring to his volunteer efforts in transporting residents to doctor's appointments or serving as a van driver on senior citizen trips. "Tony always pushed for his number one goal - that of having a drop-in area and game room for senior citizens," Haseley continued.

Friends are invited to share their memories of Tony at the Greenbelt Community Church on Crescent Road on Sunday, February 18, from 5 to 7 p.m.

"O ye beloved of the Lord, bestir yourselves, do all in your power to be as one, to live in peace, each with the other: for ye are all the drops from but one ocean, the foliage of one tree, the pearls from a single shell, the flowers and sweet herbs from the same one garden."

containers, permitting paper for recycling to be put out in containers instead of paper bags (the collectors do not like the containers as they can be very heavy when full).

The mechanics of distributing the cans proved very time consuming. First, residents were asked to specify which of the three can options they desired. Those who did not respond were assigned the highest level of service (and the highest cost). Then the cans were distributed. Finally, there was a switching period when residents could change their can size once they saw how much (or little) trash they were putting out.

Currently, Chevy Chase's collection system is similar to Greenbelt's. Refuse is collected from the back yard twice a week and recyclables curbside once a week. However, the town has just 1,028 homes, all detached single family units. Bowring said that she does not believe anyone has solved the problem of volume-based pricing in multifamily homes where trash is put out in a common area. Unstickered trash there cannot be traced back to the household to which it belongs.

Although Chevy Chase chose the container system, Bowring feels it is the harder system from an administrative standpoint. Although there are continuing administrative costs for selling stickers or bags, the sticker system is more flexible. With stickers, there is a continuing incentive to reduce the amount of refuse set out. Each bag put out has a specific cost. With a container system, however, unless you can consistently get the amount of refuse down to a smaller container, there is little incentive to change purchasing habits to generate less trash. Residents using the smallest container do not have an economic incentive to further reduce their refuse.

PGCC Workshops On Financial Aid

Students who plan to attend Prince George's Community College this summer or fall and have financial aid questions are invited to attend one of three upcoming free workshops.

The Tuesday, February 20, workshop is from 7 to 9 p.m., the Saturday, February 24, workshop 1 to 4 p.m., both in the Community Rooms of Largo Student Center. The Saturday, March 16, workshop will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. in Rennie Forum.

Students will have an opportunity to have their federal student aid applications processed electronically, allowing them to find out their financial aid eligibility more quickly.

Those who plan to attend are asked to bring copies of their income tax returns, or their parents' return if they are a dependent, plus proof of any untaxed income.

To register call the financial aid hotline, 322-0822 or TTY 322-0122, between 2 and 5 p.m.

be able to matriculate there. Yet it is an upbeat show, with a sweetness that comes from the simple, direct way these special teens seem to experience life.

Brief Narratives

"It made me very happy to take pictures at the University of Maryland with Craig," read a statement by Chris Thompson that was typical. "I liked taking pictures of buildings and people. My pictures are so nice."

About her striking photo of an ornate wall fountain, Silvia Navarro remarked, "I liked the face at the top. The scene reminds me of my home in El Salvador."

"One thing I'm very proud of is that I'm a nice guy," stated Brian Lee. And Ricky McMurtry commented, "I try not to give my parents any problems and I treat them with respect."

The formal opening of the show, which had to be postponed for two weeks due to snow, will take place on Friday, February 16. The exhibit continues through February 22. Gallery hours are Monday to Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m., and Monday to Wednesday from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Cholesterol Test

Laurel Regional Hospital will offer free cholesterol screenings to the public on Thursday, February 22 from 3 to 5 p.m., in the hospital's J. Russell Jones Room. Registration is not necessary, but a maximum of 65 screenings can take place during the allotted time. The blood test involves a finger stick that produces a drop of blood, and it measures total cholesterol (HDL plus LDL). This screening is not recommended for persons under a doctor's care who need to have HDL and LDL levels monitored separately.

Tax Returns Can Be Simplified this Year

Maryland State Comptroller Louis Goldstein and IRS District Director Paul Harrington highlighted the following Maryland state income tax changes and services at a recent news conference.

No Federal Schedule A or Child Care Forms Required

This means about one million taxpayers no longer need to send in additional federal forms with their Maryland income tax returns in order to itemize deductions or claim a child care deduction.

Electronic Filing

There are more opportunities than ever to file federal and Maryland returns electronically. People may now file their Maryland return electronically even if they owe money. A bill will be sent to them which must be paid by April 15. "By filing electronically, you are certain that the return was received and that the amount due is correct. You won't get an unexpected bill later for an adjusted amount," Goldstein added.

More taxpayers will be able to have their tax preparers file both their federal and Maryland returns electronically because Maryland is now participating in the joint federal/state electronic filing program.

New Forms-By-Fax System

Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, individual and business taxpayers, as well as tax preparers, can have copies of individual and corporation income tax forms and publications faxed to them instantaneously. Taxpayers may access the system by dialing 410-974-FAXX (974-3299) and can request up to five documents per call.

Computer Generated Returns - Use of Pre-printed Mailing Label

Goldstein reminded taxpayers and tax preparers to send in both sides of their Maryland income tax return whether it's a computer-generated form or one out of the tax booklet. He also urged taxpayers to use the mailing label issued by the Comptroller's Office, if the information is correct.

Standard Deduction

Last year, 59 percent of Maryland taxpayers claimed the standard deduction. Goldstein noted that incorrectly calculating the standard deduction continues to be one of the most frequent errors on Maryland returns. A worksheet on page seven of the Maryland tax booklet can help taxpayers correctly calculate the standard deduction that applies to them.

New Checkoff

In addition to the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Fund, there is a new Fair Campaign Financing Fund. Taxpayers can use line 63a to make a donation to help protect the Chesapeake Bay and Maryland wildlife. Taxpayers can use line 63b to make a contribution to provide a funding alternative for gubernatorial candidates who accept spending limits. Contributions reduce the taxpayer's refund or increase the amount of additional tax owed with the tax return. Contributions to these funds are deductible

Volunteers Needed

The Golden Oaks Nursing Center, located in Laurel, is in need of volunteers to visit with their residents, as well as to act as recreation assistants and escorts. For information contact P.G. Voluntary Action Center at 699-2800.

next year if people itemize deductions.

File extensions by telephone

Individual taxpayers who do not owe additional tax, but need an extension of time to file their 1995 return, may now call 410-974-5TAX (974-5829) and by entering basic data using the telephone keypad can receive an extension of time to file.

Man Who Came to Dinner At Greenbelt Arts Center

by Anne Sucher

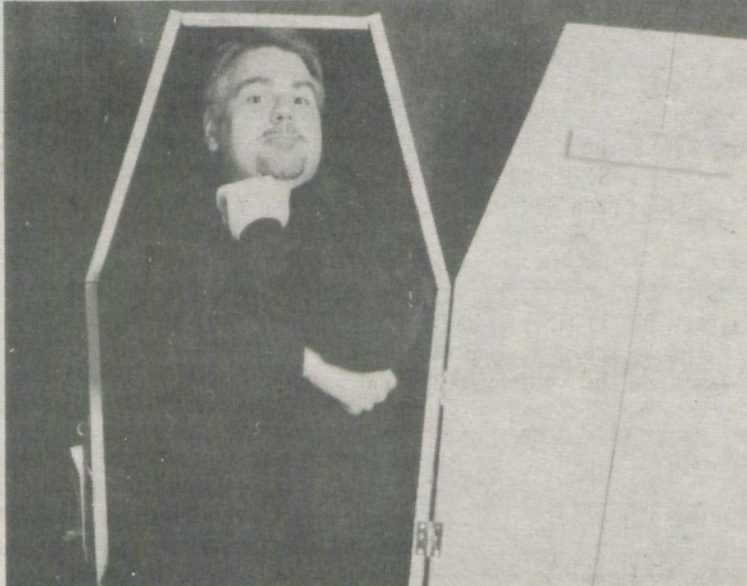

The Man Who Came to Dinner is a challenging show to find props and set pieces for. Some of the needs included an authentic 1930s wheelchair and telephone, penguins, an octopus, and an Egyptian sarcophagus. According to Greenbelt resident Hopi Auerbach, producer of the show, finding the necessary props included borrowing from other theaters, shopping at thrift stores, and looking through people's attics and closets. "Beg, borrow, steal and scrounge," she said.

The Greenbelt Arts Center begins performances this week of its newest production, The Man Who Came to Dinner. This popular classic from the 1930s is being directed by Seabrook resident Keith Brown, and will feature some familiar faces as well as new ones in a large cast of local actors.

The Man Who Came to Dinner has been a popular choice on community theater stages for years. The play is a farcical look at the shenanigans of a curmudgeonly radio celebrity, Sheridan Whiteside, who is forced, by an accident that leaves him wheelchair bound, into a prolonged stay at the home of his star-struck dinner hosts, the Stanleys. Unfortunately for the Stanleys, Whiteside doesn't think twice about stretching the limits of their generosity. The authors of The Man Who Came to Dinner, Moss Hart and George Kaufman, based the characters loosely on a group of real celebrities of the time, and the plot on an actual event.

Director Keith Brown recently directed the GAC's well received production of Woody Allen's Play It Again, Sam, which earned a favorable review by Leonard Hughes in the Washington Post.

Brown has been involved with local community theater for 17 years and with the Greenbelt Arts Center for three years. This is his third production of The Man Who Came to Dinner. The previous two were with Prince George's Little Theater and at Silver Spring Stage. Brown, who says he loves the show and always wanted to direct it, enjoys the challenge of working with experienced actors as well as those who are just setting foot on stage for the first time.

Auerbach has been involved with the Greenbelt Arts Center since 1992, and worked with Brown on Play It Again, Sam, as well as the current production. She says, "It's really fun to watch Keith direct. He has a way with folks, from the neophyte to the veteran. He seems to know how to work with people on all levels."

Danny Brooks of Upper Marlboro plays the lead, Sheridan Whiteside. Heather Quinn of Annapolis is Maggie, and Greenbelt resident Millie Ferrara plays Lorraine. Bert is played by Norm Gleichman of Takoma Park.

Eight of the 23 cast members are Greenbelt residents. Greenbelter Sandy Hamlin, previously seen at the GAC in Jigsaws and Philly, plays Nurse Preen (originally played by Mary Wickes in the 1941 film production). Ilene Levine, recently seen in The Cemetery Club, performs Mrs. Stanley, the chagrined hostess. Norma Ozur of Jake's Women and The Cemetery Club returns to the Arts Center stage as Harriet, Mr. Stanley's eccentric sister. Other GAC favorites who will reappear for this production include Trix Whitehall, Lauren Zambreny, and Jim Adams.

The Man Who Came to Dinner will be at the theater from February 16 through March 9. For information call 441-8770.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

A woman was the victim of an armed robbery on Wednesday evening, February 7. As she was walking from her car to her residence in the 7700 block of Hanover Parkway, a man approached her from behind. The man, who was carrying a medium sized handgun, told the woman to give him her purse. After obtaining the purse, he fled the scene on foot in an unknown direction. The man is described as black, 6', 240 lbs., medium complexion, with a husky build. He was wearing a black hooded jacket.

An officer patrolling the 6200 block of Springhill Drive on Sunday, February 4, stopped a vehicle for a traffic violation. A passenger in the vehicle was arrested when he was found to have an open arrest warrant with Montgomery County Sheriff's Department. When the driver was asked to step out of the vehicle, a second passenger in the vehicle exited the car and fled the scene. After a short foot chase the man was apprehended and had to be physically restrained when he resisted arrest.

The driver, a 20 year-old non-resident, and the second passenger, a 19 year-old non-resident, were found to have marijuana in their possession. Both men were charged with possession of marijuana, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute within 1000 feet of a drug free school zone. The passenger was also charged with resisting arrest. After appearing before a District Court Commissioner, the second passenger was held on $30,000 bond and the driver was held on $25,000 bond. The other passenger, a 23 year-old non-resident, was released into the custody of Montgomery County Sheriff's Department for service on the warrant.

The School Resource Officer arrested a 16 year-old non-resident youth on a charge of possession of paraphernalia on Monday, February 5, at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. A marijuana pipe was found in the youth's possession. He was released into the custody of a parent pending trial.

Officers responded to a report of an unwanted guest at a residence in the 6900 block of Hanover Parkway on Sunday evening, February 4. A man attempting to break into the front door was approached from behind by the occupant, who had exited by the rear door. The occupant struck the man on the head with a bottle and a fight ensued. The man was arrested, charged with burglary and harassment, and held on $10,000 bond pending trial.

Thefts

As a result of the investigation into an incident which occurred on September 8 in the 8000 block of Mandan Road, an arrest warrant was issued for a 41 year-old non-resident man on a charge of burglary. The warrant was transferred to the Prince George's Sheriff's Department for service.

Two 12-year-old Greenbelt youths were arrested on Friday evening, February 2, on a charge of theft which occurred at the Greenbelt Youth Center. Both youths were released to parents pending trial.

The investigation into a report of an employee theft at the Sports Authority in Beltway Plaza resulted in the arrest of an 18-year-old non-resident man on Saturday evening, February 3. The man, charged with ten counts of theft and one count of theft during a scheme of events, appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was released on citation pending trial.

While patrolling the 6900 block of Hanover Parkway on Wednesday, February 7, an officer noticed a vehicle being operated with an improper registration plate. A computer check revealed the tag had been reported stolen in Anne Arundel County. The driver, a 22 year-old non-resident woman, was arrested, charged with theft, and released on citation pending trial.

Other thefts reported include: a purse from a chair at TGI Friday's on Monday evening, February 5; money from atop a desk in a classroom at Eleanor Roosevelt High School on Tuesday evening, February

6; and money from the coin boxes of two dryers in a laundry room in the 800 block of Lakecrest Drive on Wednesday, February 7.

Auto Thefts and Recoveries

An officer patrolling the 9100 block of Springhill Lane on Wednesday evening, February 7, noticed a suspicious unoccupied vehicle. A computer check revealed the vehicle, a 1991 Hyundai, had been reported stolen to Prince George's County Police. No arrests were made.

A man located the vehicle which had been taken from him during a car jacking on January 29 in the 200 block of K Street, S. E. The vehicle, a 1992 Mazda 929 four-door, was found in a parking lot in the 6000 block of Greenbelt Road on Thursday afternoon, February 8. Officers checked the area to see if anyone might return to the vehicle, but no arrests were made.

A 1995 Dodge Neon four-door, reported stolen on January 27 from the 6400 block of Capitol Drive, was recovered on Sunday, February 4. The recovery was made by Prince George's County Police in the area of Peppermill Road and Drylog Street, Seat Pleasant. No arrests were made.

Automobile thefts reported include: a white 1985 Honda Accord four-door, MD tags CDM677, from the 9100 block of Springhill Lane on Friday, February 2; and a maroon 1990 Mazda four-door, VA tags CHELLQ, from the 7900 block of Mandan Road on Monday evening, February 5.

Vandalism to, thefts from, and attempted thefts of vehicles were reported in the following areas: Breezewood Court, Centerway, Cherrywood Terrace, Eastway, Greenbelt Road, Mandan Road (two incidents), and Ridge Road (two incidents).

Spring Walk

The Patuxent Research Refuge North Tract will conduct a "Harbinger of Spring Walk" on Saturday, February 24, from 10 a.m. to noon.

Participants will search for the first signs of spring on this hunt for skunk cabbage. This program is for ages 16 and older. There is no charge, but advance registration is required as space is limited.

Call (410) 674-3304 or TDD (410) 674-4625.

Steel Can Recycling

Steel and bi-metal cans are recyclable in the curbside program. Steel cans include those from fruit, vegetable, soup, baby formula, tuna, and pet food. Cans should be thoroughly rinsed, to avoid attracting animals. Lids can be inserted into the cans and slightly crushed or discarded. Loose lids are sharp and should be handled with care. According to the Steel Recycling Institute, nearly 66% of all steel cans were recycled in 1995. By recycling steel cans, residents supply a much needed resource as well as save energy and valuable landfill space. For more information about recycling at the curb, call the City Recycling Coordinator at 474-8308.

Student Recycling Program Planned

Most people in Greenbelt know something about recycling but few understand all the details and nuances. This can be frustrating both for residents who would like to participate to the fullest extent possible and the city, for whom missed opportunities for recycling mean more waste taken to the county landfill. However, it takes ideas, energy, and enthusiasm to develop and implement recycling educational programs. With this in mind, the Greenbelt Recycling Advisory Committee has developed volunteer possibilities for students in the Prince George's County Public School System.

Since students are expected to complete service learning experiences, volunteers at least 14 years of age will work with the city Recycling Coordinator, Tracy Vincent, in formulating some type of recycling awareness tool for the city. Current ideas are distributing pamphlets, writing news articles, and developing and implementing a survey. The committee also hopes to encourage students with acting abilities to create an educational video and those with computer skills to implement a WWW home page.

For people who enjoy the thrill of putting on events, the Greenbelt Earth Day Celebration will be expanded this year to include events for all ages.

The committee hopes that volunteer opportunities like these will allow students to use the skills they would like to develop, help them learn more about how to recycle in Greenbelt, and then pass that information on to the rest of the residents. For more information, please call Tracy Vincent at 474-8308.
